USCF RAISES DUES

CHICAGO - The Delegates attending the annual business meeting of the United States Chess Federation on August 4-5, 1979 have voted to increase membership dues as of January 1, 1980. Regular and Junior membership fees will go up 20 to $37 \frac{1}{2}$ percent, with the largest increases in multi-year memberships. Special memberships (Participating Junior, Blind, Senior and Spouse) will remain the same. In addition, a new membership class, Tournament Member, has been created which will allow anyone to play in tournaments and receive a rating by paying a fee of $\$ 1.00$ per game played. These members will not receive a subscription to Chess Life \& Review.

The dues increase was unanimously recommended by the USCF Policy Board, which consists of the President, Vice President, Treasurer, Secretary, Immediate Past

| Tournament | --- | $1/Game | President and three Members-at-Large, all of whom are elected by the State Delegates, who are elected or appointed in the states. Treasurer George Cunningham's Report ran over three hours as he strove to give the Delegates a full picture of the USCF's assets and liabilities. The Federation has problems stemming from: (1) the failure to establish a reserve account to pay the continuing costs of services to Life Members (the fees collected were spent during the years they were collected); (2) the establishment of many new programs during the membership boom created by interest in Bobby Fischer which were not discontinued when reversal of the membership trend made them impractical (most have since been slashed); (3) penalties imposed by the Internal Revenue Service when an audit revealed that some operations conducted during the Fischer boom did not comply with the regulations governing non-profit corporations; and (4) costs incurred when the computer service employed by the Federation went out of business necessitating the acquisition of a new service (the Delegates at the 1978 meeting approved the purchase of an in house system which, while initially more expensive, should pay for itself in a number of years and prevent a reoccurence of this problem). Consideration of these problems, and the effects of inflation and impending recession, led the Treasurer to predict a budget deficit of $$ 76,000$ for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1980, in spite of additional program cuts enacted last year. The Policy Board proposed the dues increase as a necessary evil to balance the budget.

Debate following the Treasurer's Report and the Policy Board recommendations ran for three and one half hours in special session on Saturday night. The Participating Junior membership, which the Policy Board proposed to eliminate, was reinstated, but all other attempts to amend the proposal were defeated. When the vote on the proposal was finally taken, the increase was approved by a margin of 40-30.

USCF - Yasser Seirawan is the new World Junior Champion. The young Seattle master scored 10-3 against top juniors from around the world to take clear first ahead of Alexander Chernin of the USSR. Seirawan adds the World Junior Championship to his outstanding perormances this year at Lone Pine and the US Junior Championship. He won the latter tournament for the second year in a row to qualify for the world meet in Skein, Norway.

CHESS OPENINGS IN MONTANA

An article in the Colorado Chess Association Bulletin about the openings used by the Colorado players, and their results, aroused my curiosity about the preferences in our own state. I reviewed the scoresheets that I'd retained from the ' 78 Rimrock, '78 MAFB, '79 Copper Kings, '79 Missoula and '79 Montana Open Tournaments and compiled the following statistics (wins-losses-draws) from a total sample of 295 games: KING PAWN: Ruy Lopez 11-5-1; Other 1...P-K4 39-29-5; Sicilian 24-24-8; Other 25-13-14; Subtotal all 1 P-K4 99-71-18.
QUEEN PAWN: Queen's Gambit Declined 7-3-0; Queen's Gambit Accepted 3-3-2; Nimzo-Indian 3-1-1; Other 8-24-5; Subtotal all 1 P-Q4 21-31-8.
OTHER: English 10-7-4; Reti 6-4-2; Bird's 3-1-1; Other 2-5-2; Subtotal 21-17-9. GRAND TOTAL: 141-119-35.

The King Pawn openings are the most popular by far, and White's results are quite good except against the Sicilian in which Black is winning as often as not. Those playing the Black side of the Ruy Lopez clearly need to do some studying or, think about switching to $1 \ldots$ P-QB4. An interesting sidelight to the King Pawn statistics is that in virtually all games where the openings left the "book" early in the game, regardless of which player deviated, White was the winner.

In the Queen Pawn games, White has done fairly well in standard variations, but in direct contrast to the King Pawn games, when the game leaves the "book" White is getting tilled. Perhaps White really has more intrinsic pressure after 1 P-K4.

But, devotees of the English, Reti and Bird's openings have met with good success, though other more exoctic tries have not faired well. Overall, White shows a slight marడin, as expected, with the exception of the Queen Pawn games noted above.

Very instructive analysis of games played by lower rated players in tournaments, friendly encounters or by mail, only $$ 10$ each. Mail lessons, $$ 5$ each. Questions on particular positions $$ 3$ each. For details just send a stamp to:

And, the colors are right to "discuss" our pet variation of the King's Gambit. b Here lies Howard's departure from the books. In King's Gambit, Chess Digest, 1973, Trevor Hay gives 7 P-Q4 N-R41 8 N-Q5 B-N5 9 0-0 P-KN4 with the plus to Black due to his solid pawn formation, so innovation in search of improvement is justified. $c 7 \ldots \mathrm{~N}-\mathrm{R} 4$ should also be possible with play similar to $\underline{b}$ above, but I've always liked the text, putting immediate pressure on e5 and locating the Knight on an cative square from which it cannot be driven. $\underline{d}$ The only move which keeps the pressure on. Howard has explored many other lines, but experience had shown that Black equalizes quickly against all but the text. e A surprise to Howard. I'd forgotten our previous analysis which continued $10 \ldots$ P-QB3 $\overline{11} \mathrm{NxP} / \mathrm{Q} 4 \mathrm{Q}-\mathrm{B} 2120-00013 \mathrm{Q}$-K4 (unclear). We'd felt that Black must prevent 11 QBxP and the threats on QB7. (Note that $10 \ldots \mathrm{~N}-\mathrm{K} 6$, though attractive, loses its charm after 11 BxN BPxN 12 BxPch KxB 13 Q-B4ch K-B1 $14 \mathrm{~N}-\mathrm{K} 5$.) f In light of what follows, we thought $110-0$ might have been better, but after $11 \ldots$...Q-QB 12 NxQP BxP Black lools better. g Howard felt that 17 P-KN3, preventing Q-B4 was better, but Black has $17 \ldots \mathrm{~B}-\mathrm{N} 5$ to secure his position. h Threatening $18 \ldots \mathrm{Q}$-B8ch or $18 \ldots \mathrm{~N}$-K6ch followed by $19 \ldots \mathrm{QxB}$. i Note the latent power of this Knight through the game, laying in wait on $N 5$ from which it cannot be driven, and finally dealing the decisive blow.

Aside from tournament games and the more casual encounters with friends, problem solving is one of the more enjoyable ways to enjoy the game, and learn a little as well. Others enjoy creating interesting problems, and Montanan's Jim Loy (left) and Kip Stubberud (right) have come up with these matching three movers (White to move and Mate in three moves.) The solutions are on page 7.
